President & Chair

This was a year like no other. We saw businesses close and nonprofits struggle to figure out how they were going to continue their important work. At the same time, many in our region confronted injustice, illness, economic hardship, and the loss of friends, neighbors, and family members.

Through our toughest days, however, we saw inspiring examples of our community coming together to support those in need. Just as the Community Foundation has done for the last four decades, we listened, reached out, and responded with thoughtful, strong, effective action.

We are humbled by the trust that so many of you put in us through your financial support. Community Foundation donors responded to the COVID-19 pandemic and the calls for racial justice with incredible generosity – contributing a record $121 million in new gifts in 2020. The Community Foundation, in turn, made 5,500 grants totaling $101 million to support southeast Michigan nonprofits. Our total assets grew to more than $1.1 billion, the largest in our history, placing us in the top 25 community foundations nationally.

These impressive numbers, however, tell only a small part of the Community Foundation's story in 2020 – and they do not come close to conveying the immense challenges and opportunities we face in the years ahead.

Throughout our history, it's been our mission to support the seven counties of southeast Michigan through good times – and through tough times. 2020 clearly fell into the category of tough times – and we knew early in the year that we would be challenged like never before. From the first days of the pandemic, we heard from nonprofits across our region that were in danger of laying off employees or closing entirely because of sudden disruptions to programs and expected revenues. Their fear was real, but we were ready to help and had the flexibility to change direction to meet the moment.

That flexibility is from having approximately $800 million of endowments, enabling us to get money out the door quickly to where it was needed most and adjust our approach as the community's needs changed. We removed restrictions from grants that had already been approved and accelerated payments to help nonprofits that had been disrupted by the pandemic. We also accelerated annual payments to the more than 200 nonprofits with endowed funds at the Community Foundation. Finally, we joined forces with many donors and foundations to mobilize support for COVID-19 response in healthcare, arts and culture, and small business development.

None of this would have been possible without your generosity and support. We will never forget how our donors ensured that we could help so many around our region. Nor would it have been possible without the dedication of our staff. Every member of the Community Foundation team acted urgently and compassionately to help our community during this time of crisis, even as they were managing the disruptions caused by COVID-19 in their own lives.

Now, as vaccines have made it possible for us to see a post-pandemic future, we face a new set of challenges and opportunities. Together with nonprofit organizations and philanthropic partners, we're working toward a vision of a more prosperous, equitable, and healthy region.

In 2020, our New Economy Initiative (NEI) stepped up to help small businesses across our region navigate the challenges caused by COVID-19. NEI invested $5 million last year to strengthen small business support organizations in Detroit, Hamtramck, Highland Park, and other Wayne County communities, helping many small businesses stay open and meet their payroll. NEI will continue to create new jobs and support countless families in our region for years to come.

The Community Foundation continued to support organizations working to root out systemic inequities from healthcare, human services, and eldercare. With the generous support of Facebook, we were able to expand our reach and support more Black-led nonprofit organizations.

As southeast Michigan and the rest of the nation heard calls for racial justice, the Community Foundation, in partnership with the Hudson-Webber Foundation, the Ballmer Group and Oakland County, launched the Community Policing Innovations Initiative. This program supports local law enforcement agencies, in partnership with community leaders, to develop substantive, pragmatic, and community-driven approaches to policing and public safety.

We are humbled by the trust that so many of you put in us.

With 14 local and national funders, the Community Foundation has also launched the Michigan Justice Fund to reduce Michigan's reliance on incarceration and detention as the primary response to crime. The initiative also aims to advance equity by addressing racial disparities in the juvenile and adult justice systems, and support communities of color that have been most heavily impacted.

In 2020, we continued to make great strides in the battle against the opioid crisis through the Michigan Opioid Project. Through our partnership with the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, other funders, and health-care providers, this impactful program is now statewide.

We also developed a vision for a Great Lakes Way – more than 160 miles of an interconnected set of trails and blue ways stretching from Lake Huron to Lake Erie. As we help build southeast Michigan's economy of the future, the Great Lakes Way will promote outdoor recreation, spark economic development, and attract residents and visitors to southeast Michigan. The Great Lakes Way vision map can be found at greatlakesway.org.

These forward-looking efforts and the outstanding work of nonprofit organizations across our region will be highlighted in this report.

We were deeply saddened by the passing of Joseph L. Hudson Jr., the founder and 19-year chairman of the Community Foundation. Joe was an extraordinary civic leader and passionate philanthropist. He was known for coining the phrase "building community capital," a phrase he used to describe the Community Foundation's financial capital, but also the social, moral, and reputational capital that we bring to our work in southeast Michigan.

Our Board has done a superb job of modeling Joe's example of community leadership over the years. The Community Foundation was pleased to add three new trustees who will help us continue that legacy: Mark A. Davidoff, JoAnn Chávez, and Chuck Stokes. And we are grateful to Margaret A. Allessee, who retired from the Board in December after 19 years of volunteer service.

We appreciate the Community Foundation staff who worked in innovative and new ways to enable all we do. We could not be prouder of the way this team pulled together to help those in need.

We are committed to helping all in southeast Michigan recover from this pandemic and are inspired by the continued compassion in our communities. Thank you for the generosity of so many, both locally and nationally, who helped us over these past few months. The Community Foundation is best when working with others and we welcome your thoughts and suggestions.

Keeping the arts alive during a pandemic

March 28, 2020, was going to be a big night for the Michigan Opera Theatre. It was scheduled as opening night for “Champion” – Grammy Award-winner Terence Blanchard’s much-anticipated opera based on the life of welterweight world champion Emile Griffith. But when COVID-19 forced southeast Michigan’s stages and exhibition spaces to go dark earlier that month, the debut of “Champion” was postponed – as was the rest of Michigan Opera Theatre’s 2020 schedule.

However, COVID-19 did not stop MOT from bringing opera to its patrons. With support from the Community Foundation, it was able to create a series of digital programs called “MOT at Home,” in which it presented an interesting array of virtual lectures, webcasts, and podcasts. It also debuted an adapted live presentation of the opera “Twilight: Gods.” Equal parts drive-in theater and opera house event, MOT staged the performance in its parking center for audience members to experience from the safety of their cars.

MOT was one of dozens of southeast Michigan arts and culture organizations that were able to stay afloat and continue to deliver programming in 2020 because of support from the Community Foundation, which gave its existing 2020 grantees the option of repurposing their funding where possible to meet the pressing needs created by COVID-19. Grantees included brand-name cultural institutions like MOT, as well as smaller community organizations. For example, the Chaldean Community Cultural Center in West Bloomfield launched an ambitious digital storytelling project that educates the public about the history of the Chaldean people and preserves elements of Chaldean culture for future generations.

Early in the pandemic, the Community Foundation partnered with CultureSource to create a special program – the COVID-19 Arts and Creative Community Assistance Fund – to address the needs of arts and culture groups. We appreciate the partnership of many foundations and corporations that provide both money and guidance. Grants were provided to more than 50 organizations to help relieve financial pressures created by the pandemic and to shift to new opportunities.

Despite exciting innovation, arts and culture groups will continue to face challenges even after they are able to reopen. The Community Foundation will continue to work with its partners to help these vital organizations remain vibrant and prosperous.

COVID-19 Arts and Creative Community Assistance Fund Funders

Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan, DeRoy Testamentary Foundation, John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, Ford Foundation, Kresge Foundation, Leinweber Foundation, Max M. and Marjorie S. Fisher Foundation, Peck Foundation, William Davidson Foundation

Like many organizations, the Michigan Opera Theatre found itself innovating to bring performances to its patrons such as their “Twilight: Gods” drive-in theater. The Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan partnered with CultureSource to support innovation through the COVID-19 Arts and Creative Community Assistance Fund.

Programs & Grants

The Community Foundation distributed more than 5,500 grants in 2020. The impact of these grants can be seen throughout the year. As one of the largest regional grantmakers in southeast Michigan, we make strategic investments to move the region forward. We partner with communities, nonprofits, foundations, and stakeholders to implement solutions to complex issues. We educate the community on pressing needs, build partnerships, undertake targeted initiatives, and make grants to support projects and organizations that will have a positive impact on southeast Michigan and beyond.

Nurturing small businesses through good times – and bad times

For southeast Michigan entrepreneurs like Danielle North, resilience and flexibility are necessary traits – even during the best of times. But when COVID-19 forced her Grandmont Rosedale business, Kidz Kingdom Child Care and Party Center, to shut down for several months in 2020, North needed some extra help to keep her small business afloat.

North found that support through the New Economy Initiative (NEI). NEI is an entrepreneurial development initiative led by the Community Foundation which partners with economic development agencies and nonprofits to support and nurture entrepreneurs throughout southeast Michigan. Since 2007, NEI has awarded more than $127 million to business support organizations that have assisted nearly 19,000 companies employing nearly 45,000 people in southeast Michigan. Three-quarters of those businesses are women and minority-led; NEI prioritizes working with grantees that are adept in helping entrepreneurs who would otherwise struggle to gain access to financing and professional services.

NEI's work was critical to Kidz Kingdom and 4,900 other southeast Michigan small businesses that received support during the pandemic's darkest days. ProsperUS Detroit, an NEI grantee, helped Kidz Kingdom navigate state and federal programs that assisted businesses during the pandemic and provided rent forgiveness and low-interest loans. In 2020, small businesses also gained access to stabilization funds, practical assistance, and personal protective equipment from NEI-supported organizations to help them navigate the pandemic.

With NEI's support, ProsperUS Detroit is now honing its focus to a new phase of work. It aims to double its annual loan deployment over the next two years, expand its financial coaching program to help more emerging entrepreneurs launch new businesses, and launch a new product to help small-business owners improve their credit.

Through these and other efforts, NEI will continue to support southeast Michigan entrepreneurs, create jobs, and improve our local economy. NEI and its philanthropic partners have committed $20 million to continue the support for small businesses in Detroit and Wayne County for the next five years. For more information visit neweconomyinitiative.org.

A better chance at a fresh start

Nearly 100,000 people in Michigan are currently in prison, on parole, or on probation. Among those, roughly 40,000 individuals are incarcerated in state prisons, including the elderly and many who are living with a mental illness. Another 15,000 people are in Michigan jails, with most awaiting trial. Significant racial disparities exist at every stage of justice-system contact, with African Americans comprising over half of the state's prison population.

The Michigan Justice Fund – a partnership between the Community Foundation and 13 local and national foundations – aims to support justice policy reform and address racial disparities in the justice system. It also creates structures that help those transitioning out of jails and prisons build successful careers and strong families after their release.

To assist in the development of the grantmaking strategy and roadmap necessary to advance justice reform, the Michigan Justice Fund convened a group of 26 organizations working across diverse justice system issues and policies. The outcome of that work resulted in the creation of three primary goals including strengthening Michigan's funding, policies, and practices to support economic mobility and the overall success of people with criminal records; reducing the reliance on confinement and adjudication; and building a movement for communities to shape policies and funding.

The Michigan Justice Fund recently made its first round of grants to organizations across the state of Michigan that support projects ranging from a research partnership designed to examine prosecutorial decision-making impact on racial minorities, to a program that provides job readiness training and work opportunities for returning citizens.

Moving forward, the work will continue to strengthen the capacity of nonprofits working for justice reform, increase funder collaboration on supporting justice-impacted communities, and shift public perceptions about people who have been incarcerated. For more information visit cfsem.org/justice.

The fund will focus primarily on programs that promote high quality early childhood education and family engagement as a means to develop early literacy skills. The fund may also support programs and activities that enhance systems of education and care for young children and their families, as well as professional development for teachers and other professionals who work with young children and their families.

Delivering support to older adults

The average human lifespan has doubled over the past century – which means that we have more adults living longer lives in our community than ever before. That’s why the Community Foundation has been increasingly investing in programs that support older adults in our community.

Through a partnership with the Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Foundation, for example, the Community Foundation has granted more than $1.5 million since 2016 to support projects that help caregivers of older adults who are unable to fully care for themselves.

In 2020, however, older adults in southeast Michigan faced a number of new and pressing challenges. The COVID-19 pandemic put an incredible strain on mental health – as the stress of daily living and social isolation impacted older adults and caregivers. A June 2020 survey found 56 percent of people over the age of 50 felt isolated from others – more than double the number who reported feeling isolated in a similar poll conducted in 2018 by the University of Michigan’s Institute for Healthcare Policy and Innovation.

In the face of these challenges, the Community Foundation worked closely with nonprofits across southeast Michigan to invest in technology and programs that would provide support to older adults and their caregivers – and deliver critical funding to help nonprofits adjust quickly to meet rapidly changing needs.

This included support for nonprofits like the Senior Alliance, which works with older adults and their caregivers in Wayne County. With funding from the Community Foundation, the Senior Alliance purchased Joy For All robotic companion pets – which helped address isolation for older adults and those with dementia. It also significantly ramped up its ability to collect, purchase, and deliver food and personal-care items to older adults and their caregivers – many of whom were facing emergency needs as a result of the pandemic. Support from the Community Foundation also enabled the organization to enlist nearly 40 volunteers to provide emergency shopping for individuals in need and to continue to deliver food boxes monthly.

The pandemic also put a heavy toll on caregivers, particularly people who care for older adults – especially those who care for those with dementia and Alzheimer’s disease. Caregivers faced increased stress and isolation and, in many cases, lost access to outside resources and support as a result of social distancing. Universal Dementia Caregivers – a nonprofit that educates and supports caregivers who help loved ones who have Alzheimer’s and other dementia – used funding from the Community Foundation to offer training, host weekly discussions on Facebook Live, plan and host activities and events, and provide safe spaces for caregivers to talk with each other virtually.

Across the country, the pandemic reinforced that we need to take better care of our older adults. Organizations working in this space were innovative and resilient, but we will need to continue to look for ways to support them and their clients.

The Community Foundation has a long history of supporting organizations that provide services for caregivers and older adults. 2020 presented unique challenges, ranging from mental health to food insecurity to training for caregivers in the face of the pandemic.

2020 Donors

Thousands of individuals, families, businesses, nonprofits, and other foundations have worked with the Community Foundation since our founding in 1984. We are grateful for the confidence placed in us by so many. We believe our investment experience and deep knowledge of the impactful work being done in our region makes us an excellent partner for people committed to a strong future for southeast Michigan.

Working together to reduce opioid misuse

The Michigan Opioid Partnership – an ambitious public-private collaborative that includes the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, funders, and health-care providers – is working to reduce the growing number of opioid overdoses and deaths in Michigan.

Prior to the pandemic, deaths by opioid overdoses occurred at roughly twice the rate of traffic fatalities in Michigan – and preliminary data shows that opioid-related overdose deaths were up 20 percent in the state during the first six months of 2020.

But there is hope for better days ahead. The Michigan Opioid Partnership is funding and implementing groundbreaking work through a team of staff at the Community Foundation. With funding from the Partnership for its Emergency Department Project, Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak identifies those who are experiencing opioid use disorder (OUD) in its emergency room and provides these patients with access to immediate treatment. Patients are then able to continue treatment at community-based treatment providers without facing traditional barriers or challenges to treatments. The process increases the number of people who are identified as needing treatment, as well as the number of people who begin and continue treatment longer term. The model that Beaumont Royal Oak is using continues to inform best practices at other hospitals – and state legislation is being introduced that will mandate that most hospitals in Michigan adopt this promising model of care.

Because funders and the State of Michigan believed this should be a statewide effort, the Michigan Opioid Partnership grew to serve organizations and residents around the state. In the Upper Peninsula, where access to treatment is limited, the Michigan Opioid Partnership has provided the resources and technical assistance to establish a similar model in the emergency department at War Memorial Hospital in Sault Ste. Marie, along with a new clinic. The clinic provides ongoing treatment for patients with OUD – many of whom are identified through the hospital's emergency room. During its first three months, the clinic has helped more than 100 patients begin treatment.

The Community Foundation is proud to serve as the leader and fiscal home for this state-wide effort, which has laid the groundwork for addressing one of Michigan's most pressing challenges. For more on the Michigan Opioid Partnership, visit cfsem.org/opioids.

Michigan Opioid Partnership Funders

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan Foundation, Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan, Ethel and James Flinn Foundation, The Jewish Foundation, Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, Michigan Endowment Fund, Superior Health Foundation

A public-private collaborative including the state of Michigan and key nonprofit funders, the Michigan Opioid Partnership works to decrease Michigan opioid overdoses and deaths through prevention, treatment, harm reduction, and sustained recovery.

Becoming a Donor

When you want to make an impact in the world, it helps to have a good guide.

The Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan specializes in making it easy for donors to turn their philanthropic vision into a reality. When you work with us, you'll partner with a passionate and knowledgeable team of experts who can help you refine your vision and develop a personalized strategy for turning that vision into action.

You gain access to unmatched local and regional expertise, community connections, and learning opportunities. You also gain access to a powerful set of tools that are designed to help you make the most of your resources while seeking maximum tax advantages. Gifts of any size help to build the community capital needed to help improve southeast Michigan now and into the future.

A Donor Advised Fund with the Community Foundation is one way to streamline your charitable giving to support the charities that you care about during your lifetime. Your gift can be invested and grow tax free. We do all the paperwork for grant distributions to charities as you recommend. You can name the fund or remain anonymous.

You can also work with us to leave a lasting legacy for you and your family. You can simply include language in your will or trust specifying a gift to the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan, as part of your estate plan. Bequest gifts help to create permanent funds that can meet community needs and opportunities for generations to come.

We also have expertise in receiving gifts of complex assets, and we can assist you and your professional advisors to leverage these resources for community benefit in a tax advantaged manner.

No matter your goals, we are available to help you and your professional advisor. For more information, we encourage you to contact our Philanthropic Services department at 313.961.6675 or go to cfsem.org/myimpact.

ENDOWMENT INVESTMENT HIGHLIGHTS

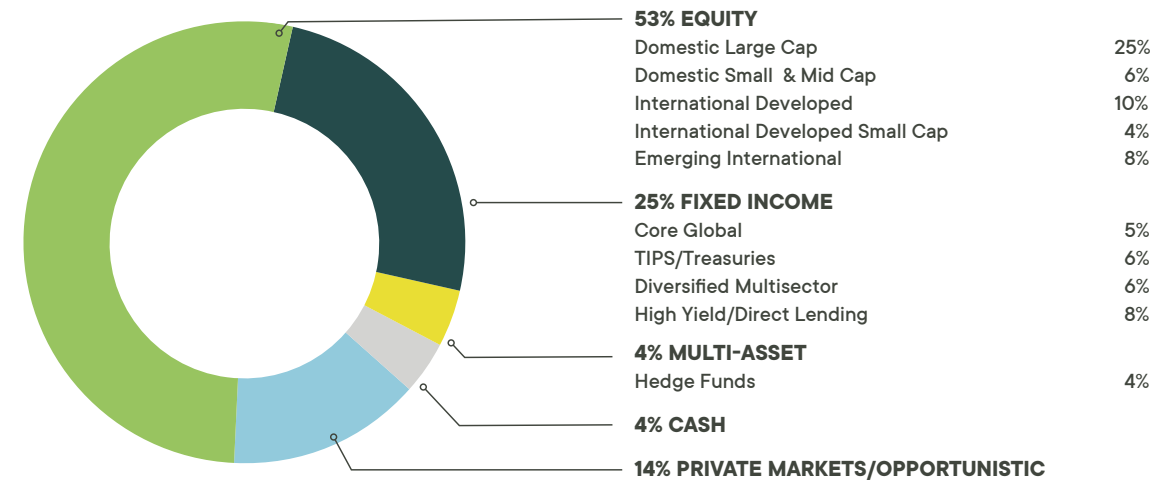

The Community Foundation's endowment investment pool totaled approximately $792 million on December 31, 2020, representing more than 70% percent of the Foundation's total assets. This is an increase of $106 million from the prior year's market value, thanks to market appreciation as well as new contributions. The portfolio returned 12.8%, ranking in the 45th percentile of peers over a one-year period. Performance was 9.6% and 7.2% over the trailing five- and ten-year periods.

Policy changes during the year included eliminating the 6% exposure to global asset allocation strategies. These strategies are designed to take advantage of market volatility, but with increased central bank intervention, investors have been encouraged to invest in risk assets, specifically equities. The current policy targets 53% to equities. Changes also included an increase in the fixed income target from 4% to 6%, with an expansion from exclusively U.S. Treasury

Inflation-Protected Securities ("TIPS") to include both TIPS and Treasuries. Along with a 4% allocation to cash, this creates a 10% exposure to safe-haven assets.

The Community Foundation's Investment Committee provides direction and oversight to the overall investment program and particularly the endowment pool. The Foundation seeks the total return for the endowment to rank in the top half of its peer group over time while taking similar or less risk. The Committee works closely with its investment consultant, NEPC, regularly meeting to review investment risks and opportunities as they arise. A Subcommittee is also engaged as needed to keep the momentum going between meetings of the full Committee.

The Community Foundation recognizes and appreciates the dedication and support of all its volunteer Committee members and its consultant.
