A MESSAGE from THE

President & Chair

This year ushers in a new era in the Community Foundation's history. With a new president, we have a rare opportunity to take a step back, build on 35+ years of success, and to embark on a strategic plan that will serve the region for years to come.

Richard L. DeVore
PRESIDENT

James B. Nicholson
CHAIR

During her storied tenure as the Community Foundation's founding president, Mariam Noland transformed what started as an idea into an institution that has become the bedrock of community-based philanthropy in southeast Michigan. During its nearly four-decade history, the foundation has made more than $1.4 billion in grants and established hundreds of endowed funds for our region's nonprofits to create permanent community capital. With another $1.3 billion in assets under management, we have an opportunity to invest in our community for generations to come.

A cornerstone of the Community Foundation is collaboration. We are proud to work with our employees and volunteers to partner with our donors and funders to address needs, provide resources to the underserved, and to build the capacity of the leaders and organizations of tomorrow.

We believe we have what it takes to build a better tomorrow for future generations.

The 2022 report captures and quantifies that impact. You'll learn how the Community Foundation facilitated more than 5,000 grants totaling $103 million during the past year and navigated a global pandemic that continued to disrupt life in our region. You'll explore how our team-led, community-based efforts, such as the Pontiac Funders Collaborative, stimulate economic growth and increase opportunity.

You'll also gain insights into our powerful philanthropic partnerships, including our work with the Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Foundation, to improve the lives of children across our region.

These stories illustrate how the Community Foundation has blossomed into a critical local institution. We connect donors who care about our region with opportunities to leverage their philanthropy in ways that make a collective impact. This powerful approach, a community-based model in which the contributions of many are combined to collectively support their neighbors, is what makes us unique.

But while some already recognize the impact, our role is to grow that understanding and value of the Community Foundation, its mission, and its work.

Our region, and our nation, bear the scars of a tumultuous decade marked by increasing polarization and political strife, capped by a global pandemic. We believe the process of healing and moving forward begins at the community level — and that the Community Foundation is uniquely positioned to bring our region together around a shared vision.

We've shown what is possible when we collectively work to address community issues. Now, we have an opportunity, and a responsibility, to rally our neighbors to join our movement by investing in our community, building greater trust with grassroots organizations, and forging new partnerships with philanthropy and business to scale our success.

We must continue to grow our general endowment so we can do even more. The pandemic demonstrated how philanthropy can quickly mobilize to make a positive impact during a crisis by utilizing the financial stability that endowment provides. We need to build on that flexibility to help organizations and the residents we serve today, with an eye toward preparing for the inevitable challenges ahead.

We also have an obligation to help organizations grow their endowments. Around 230 nonprofits are growing their endowment with us and are seeing the value of long-term operating support in an uncertain world.

We have a lot of work to do. We have a passion for ensuring that underserved communities have the resources they need to thrive, grow, and nurture our future leaders; we must empower and support leaders who reflect the communities they serve.

We believe we have what it takes to build a better tomorrow for future generations.

Thank You, Mariam

Mariam Noland, president of the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan for the past 36 years, retired earlier in 2022. She established the Community Foundation as a source of permanent, flexible endowment for the region, with $1.3 billion in assets and a legacy of more than $1.4 billion in grants awarded to nonprofits.

Her tenure is defined by so much more than assets accrued and grants made. Under Mariam's leadership, the Community Foundation became a premier organization leading change, creating lasting impact and inspiring giving in our region. Her creativity and leadership were central to the development of more than 60 collaborations, each with a distinct vision.

These efforts built permanent endowments for charitable organizations throughout southeast Michigan, that focused on reducing racial disparities, provided early support of LGBTQ organizations, developed a network of hundreds of miles of greenways, and helped diverse entrepreneurs who are strengthening the regional economy.

Mariam was instrumental in gathering support for the "Grand Bargain," a more than $800 million collaboration that helped Detroit exit bankruptcy while preserving cultural assets and securing retiree pensions. During the COVID-19 pandemic, she quickly assembled partners to raise millions of dollars to meet the needs of front-line workers, hard-hit communities, and small businesses.

Mariam's community work earned her the Eleanor Josaitis Unsung Hero Award and recognition as a Michiganiaan of the Year by The Detroit News, which referred to her as the "ultimate problem solver." We can't think of a more accurate description. And, in October of 2021, Mariam was awarded the Russell G. Mawby Award for Philanthropy from the Council of Michigan Foundations.

In Mariam's honor, the Community Foundation Board of Trustees, several other foundations, and members of the community launched the Mariam C. Noland Fund for Public Spaces. This new fund at the Community Foundation will build on our long legacy of supporting the construction, maintenance, and programming of public spaces that draw people together, provide access to all, and build communities throughout southeast Michigan.

We thank Mariam and wish her all the best.

Creative Collaborations

Fuel Community Impact

Communities are stronger when organizations and individuals develop shared approaches to addressing problems.

As a community foundation, we explore creative ways to foster collaboration and give nonprofits the tools they need to make a lasting impact in their neighborhoods — and we've learned that the best collaborations start with trust.

That's why we're proud of our work with the Pontiac Funders Collaborative, which has granted more than $1.3 million to grassroots nonprofits to support economic growth in Pontiac. The financial investment is significant. But its impact is about much more than money.

The collaborative — supported by a diverse group of foundation and corporate funders — centers on a deliberate partnership with the Pontiac community. While the Community Foundation manages the effort, our work is informed by Pontiac leaders and community members who are actively implementing a collective impact process. This process includes working closely with residents and community stakeholders to establish a shared vision, set goals, and invest in community organizations that can help achieve that vision.

This trust-based approach has led to investments in programs that train civic and community leaders, build the capacity of small and mid-size nonprofits in Pontiac, and help nonprofits communicate and partner.

An example of this successful approach is how one of the grantees, the Micah 6 Community, is working to transform a local abandoned elementary school into a thriving community resource center.

The Pontiac Funders Collaborative is just one example of how we work in communities to identify priorities and invest in programs and organizations that reflect their goals and shared values. When we collaborate with our communities to identify shared solutions and help our nonprofit partners flourish, our positive impact on the region grows.

Empowering Communities

Across Our Region

As a regional community foundation, we believe success shouldn't have boundaries.

If a program or initiative works well in Ferndale, it will have a much greater impact if we can also help it take root in Utica, Detroit, and Mount Clemens.

As a result, we seek out opportunities to support projects that improve lives in every corner of our seven-county service area and help people from infancy to retirement and beyond.

Programs like Positive Emotional Development and Learning Skills (PEDALS), which improves emotional competence and skills for children, are making a lasting mark throughout southeast Michigan.

When young children learn how to empathize with others' emotions, work and play independently, and constructively express their feelings, they are better equipped to learn and grow. PEDALS provides a proven model for preschool teachers to bring these critical social-emotional learning techniques to their classrooms. In turn, young students develop lifelong skills that they can carry with them as they mature.

PEDALS was founded in New York in 2012. The Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Foundation, which had been one of the program's key funders, decided to bring PEDALS' successful model to southeast Michigan in 2017. We are honored to serve as the Wilson Foundation's partner for PEDALS in our region and have introduced the program to more than 150 preschool classrooms.

Now, we're embarking on an expansion that will help early-childhood educators use the PEDALS' approach with infants and toddlers. This first-of-its-kind program has earned the attention of RAND Corp., a research nonprofit that will serve as our evaluation partner. This powerful partnership has the potential to transform the lives of thousands of children.

It also continues a tradition of empowering communities across our region. For example, we support Goodwill Industries' efforts to connect workers across southeast Michigan with well-paying jobs and Presbyterian Villages' Victory Cup series, which keeps seniors throughout our region active and healthy.

Together with these and other partners, we invest in ensuring that everyone in southeast Michigan has an opportunity to thrive.

Stability and Support for Southeast Michigan Nonprofits

Strong nonprofits are the backbone of strong communities. When nonprofits have capable leadership and a stable financial outlook, they have the power to deliver on their mission.

Throughout our history, the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan has made it a priority to strengthen nonprofits through endowment and funding collaboratives.

Today, we manage agency endowment funds for more than 230 nonprofits that range in size from $10,000 to more than $20 million. These organizations rely on our team of experts to handle every aspect of endowment management — from processing donations, to managing the investments, to making annual distributions to support the nonprofit's operations. This reduces overhead and administrative costs for nonprofits, while providing them with top-notch investment oversight and visibility.

For organizations like the Autism Alliance of Michigan and the Blood Cancer Foundation of Michigan, these agency endowment funds include named sub-funds that carry out a donor's legacy and directly support the nonprofit's long-term operations.

For example, Mana de Metro Detroit's endowment fund directly supports scholarships for Latinas.

Clark Park Coalition in Southwest Detroit, meanwhile, uses its endowment fund to ensure that the 100-year-old organization will continue to serve as a trusted community resource for the next century — and beyond.

In addition to endowed funds, we also collaborate with other foundations and donors who want to pool their resources to support nonprofits and address important community needs.

One prominent example is the Detroit Journalism Engagement Fund — a partnership between the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, the Ford Foundation, and the Community Foundation. This fund advances quality journalism in Detroit and southeast Michigan at a time when local news reporting is threatened. Over its first four years, the fund delivered nearly $1.1 million to support projects like Urban Aging News, which covers issues facing older adults in metro Detroit, and Tostada Magazine, which elevates the voices of Detroit's diverse communities in coverage of food and dining.

Through partnerships like the Detroit Journalism Engagement Fund and the growth of nonprofit endowments, our region's nonprofits are growing stronger and building capacity to serve our region for generations to come.

Programs & Grants

As one of the largest grantmakers in southeast Michigan, the Community Foundation makes sustainable, strategic investments that benefit the region and all of its residents. We collaborate with communities, nonprofits, foundations, government, and stakeholders to develop innovative solutions that create lasting change. In 2021, the Community Foundation distributed more than 5,000 grants to support programs and organizations that will make a positive impact on people's lives.

Active Initiatives in 2021

We create and fund strategic initiatives that improve the quality of life in our region today and help position it for a stronger tomorrow.

Afghan Resettlement Fund

As of the end of 2021, Michigan was planning to accept 1,600 Afghan arrivals, and that number is continuing to grow. The Council of Michigan Foundations asked the Community Foundation to establish this fund so interested foundations from across the state could pool funds to support this population in a coordinated way. All committed funds are aimed to support urgent human services/basic needs and legal services for the Afghan arrival population.

Black-Led Mental Health Partnership

Supported by a collaborative of Michigan-based foundations, this pilot program was launched because racial and ethnic minority groups are less likely to have access to mental health services, less likely to use community mental health services, more likely to use inpatient hospitalization and emergency rooms, and more likely to receive lower-quality care. Through this work, the collaborative is funding partnerships between Black-led community-based organizations and trusted behavioral care providers, such as clinics and health centers. The goal is to enable organizations to provide connections to quality Black-led mental health services to their clients.

Community Policing Innovations Initiative

The goal of the Community Policing Innovations Initiative is to provide the guidance and support necessary for local communities in partnership with local law enforcement, to develop community-driven, substantive, and pragmatic changes in the way that policing and public safety services are provided.

Detroit Journalism Engagement Fund

The purpose of the Detroit Journalism Engagement Fund is to increase the quality, outcomes and reach of journalism in the region, with an emphasis on engagement, innovation, and the equitable recovery of Detroit.

Emergency Rental Assistance Outreach Project

Established by the Ballmer Group at the Community Foundation, this project is focused on educating local citizens in specific Wayne County communities on the availability of ARPA Emergency Rental Housing Assistance. The Community Foundation is providing mini-grants to a targeted group of local community and nonprofit media organizations, working in partnership with Wayne County's Economic Development department, to assist citizens in applying for the dollars so that this funding is utilized in a timely manner by communities most in need.

Future of Information

Reliable sources of community information are critical for an informed and engaged society. The Future of Information series connects national leaders in data and information science, first amendment policy and law, educational policy and information, and other topics with local residents who are concerned about how changes in information are impacting their communities and democracy.

Great Lakes Way

All residents and visitors of southeast Michigan are connected to and benefit from world-class freshwater, wildlife, recreation, and heritage right in our backyard through a Great Lakes Way. A Great Lakes Way will be an interconnected set of 156 miles of blueways and 143 miles of greenways stretching from southern Lake Huron through western Lake Erie.

Immigrant & Refugee Funders Collaborative

The Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan in partnership with other community groups has created the Southeast Michigan Immigrant and Refugee Funders Collaborative to help address needs of the population in the region.

Michigan Opioid Partnership

The Michigan Opioid Partnership is a public-private collaborative including the State of Michigan and key philanthropic organizations who share the goal of decreasing Michigan opioid overdoses and deaths.

Michigan Justice Fund

The Michigan Justice Fund is an investment in the development of a roadmap to chart out a collaborative philanthropic strategy to create a thriving and enabling environment in Michigan, necessary to advance justice reform initiatives.

New Economy Initiative

The New Economy Initiative is working to diversify the regional economy of southeast Michigan and stimulate entrepreneurial development.

Pontiac Funders Collaborative

The Pontiac Funders Collaborative supports leaders in Pontiac working to identify city-wide goals and provides funding to build capacity for local leaders and organizations to achieve those goals.

Project Play

The purpose of the initiative is to seek both community-wide and specific-stakeholder input to collaboratively build local solutions that address a goal of "building communities in which all children have the opportunity to be active in sports."

Supporting Brightmoor Leaders

The Max M. & Marjorie S. Fisher Foundation's Supporting Brightmoor Leaders program provides capacity building grants to social impact organizations and individual neighborhood leaders within the Brightmoor neighborhood.

Staging Change Detroit

This program, supported by the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation in partnership with the Community Foundation, is providing capacity building support for a diverse cohort of ten theaters in Detroit over a five-year period.

Wilson Arts & Culture Investment

In December 2021, The Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Foundation announced a $100 million commitment to transform the financial strength and long-term viability of Southeast Michigan's arts and culture community through the establishment of an endowment at the Community Foundation that will support the sector now and forever.

How One Philanthropist's Legacy Continues Through Endowment

The recently restored Detroit Central Market at The Henry Ford's Greenfield Village in Dearborn gives visitors an opportunity to learn about life during the 19th century in Detroit. It also showcases the legacy of one of our region's great philanthropists, the late Ray Smith. After proudly serving his country during World War II, Ray returned home to Detroit to begin his post-war life by joining his father's successful real estate business — the Conrad Smith Realty Company.

He also resolved to give back to the community he called home.

In 1954, he started a private foundation, which he used to support cultural, health, and civic organizations throughout Detroit. The foundation provided grants that restored the fountain in Hart Plaza, helped build the Cyprian Center apartments for adults with disabilities, and made needed repairs at a shelter for women.

But Ray didn't want to stop there. He wanted to ensure that his impact continued well into the future.

To make that happen, he transferred the assets from his private foundation to the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan, creating the endowed Raymond C. Smith Foundation Fund.

The assets in the fund, which originally totaled $5.4 million, have fueled nearly 200 grants to nonprofits totaling $6.3 million. Even better, because of investment gains, the fund has grown to $6.8 million, allowing it to support nonprofits throughout our region for generations to come.

Ray's philanthropy has improved thousands of lives in southeast Michigan. It was also instrumental in restoring the Detroit Central Market where his grandfather, a 19th-century grocer, sold his wares.

In 2008, Ray's fund provided an initial $100,000 grant to The Henry Ford for the Market project. The market structure — originally located in Detroit's Cadillac Square — had to be dismantled, stored, and then painstakingly reassembled in Dearborn, based on old photographs. When stewards of the fund learned that more support was needed to make the project a reality, they continued to make annual gifts for a decade — a commitment that encouraged other donors to step forward to provide the funding necessary to complete the ambitious project.

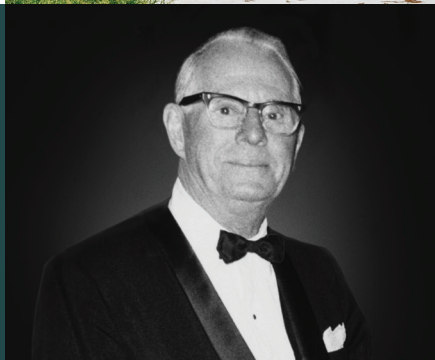

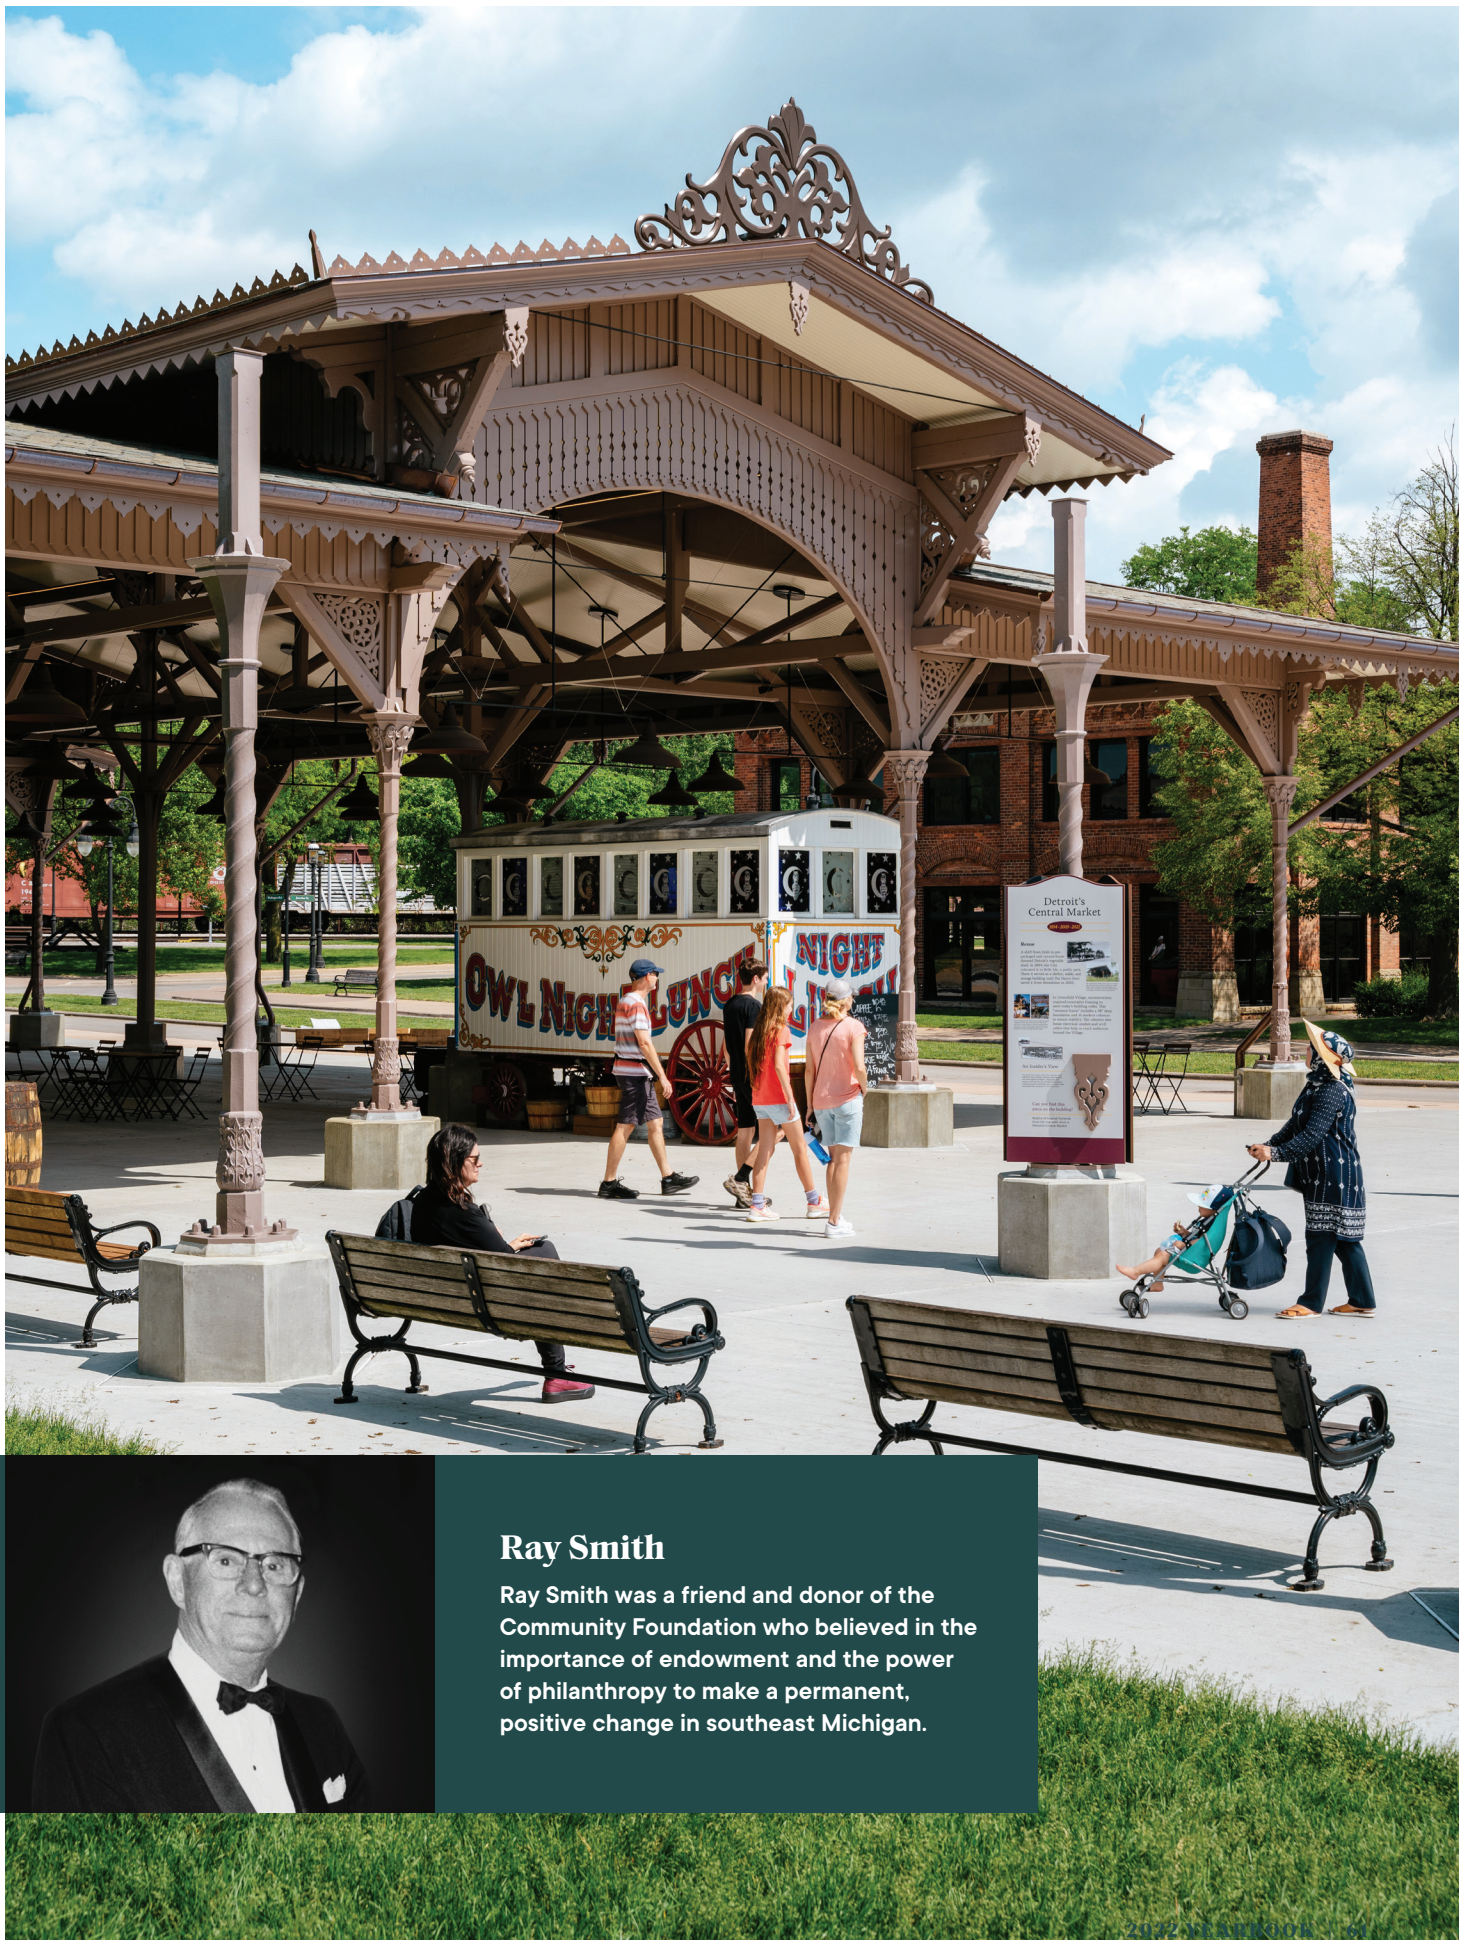

As a result, the Detroit Central Market opened in April 2022, offering visitors an immersive experience where they can learn about life in 19th-century Detroit.

It wouldn't have happened without Ray Smith, a philanthropist who wanted to leave a legacy for his community.

Right

Thanks to the philanthropic legacy of Ray Smith, the Detroit Central Market building was restored to its original glory when it was rebuilt at Greenfield Village to provide educational opportunities for all who visit.

Ray Smith

Ray Smith was a friend and donor of the Community Foundation who believed in the importance of endowment and the power of philanthropy to make a permanent, positive change in southeast Michigan.

Supporting Organizations

A supporting organization is a separate corporation or trust affiliated with the Community Foundation. Supporting organizations offer donors significant advantages — favorable tax status and full participation in grantmaking and investment activities — while avoiding the financial and management burdens private foundations often encounter. Supporting organizations also take advantage of the professional support of Community Foundation staff, who assist in the administration of their funds. Donors may establish new supporting organizations or transition existing private foundations into supporting organizations at the Community Foundation.

2021 Endowment Investment Highlights

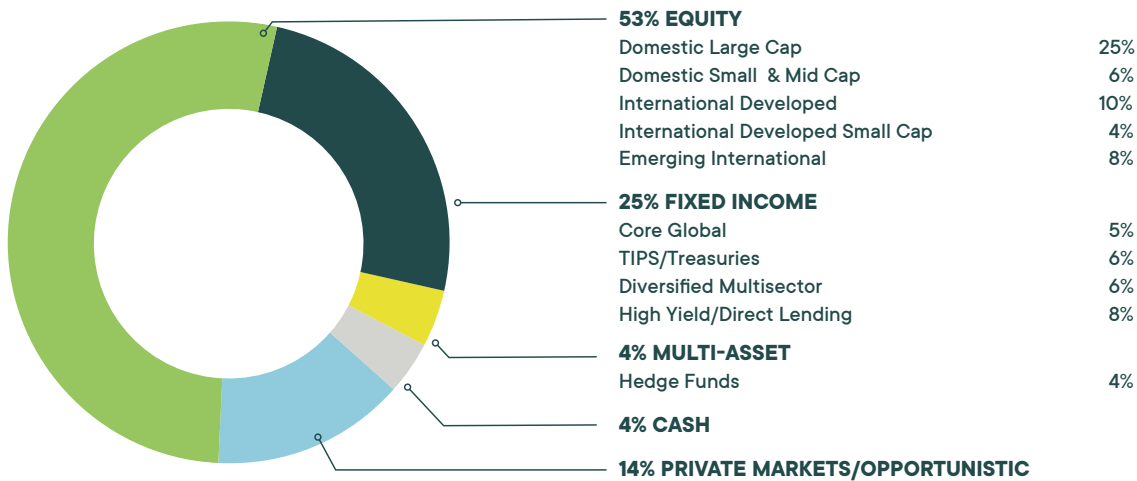

The Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan secures and invests funds to support the region. The Community Foundation's Investment Committee provides direction and oversight to the overarching investment program, particularly with an emphasis on the larger endowment portfolio. The endowment portfolio is subject to a spending plan that is calculated by averaging a fund's prior market values to determine grants available for the year.

Capital markets were strong throughout 2021. As of December 31, 2021, the Community Foundation's Endowment Fund totaled approximately $908.6 million after a robust 11.9% return year over year. This is an increase of approximately $116.8 million from the prior year's market value thanks to market appreciation and new contributions. Regarding relative results, the Community Foundation performed in line with peers (i.e. endowments and foundations with $100 million to $1 billion in assets) with a 54th percentile ranking over the past 12 months. When looking out over longer time periods, performance was compelling as well, up 10.4% and 8.0% over the trailing five- and seven-year periods. For context, the Community Foundation seeks to produce returns in the top half of its peer group while taking similar or less risk.

Despite a strong end to 2021, 2022 has been challenging for investors. Inflation, rising interest rates, and the Russia-Ukraine conflict have weighed on markets as economies around the globe grapple with a "new normal." It is in these times, adherence to a well-diversified portfolio and long-term investment horizon is paramount. The endowment portfolio is meant to provide steady support for current and future needs, in perpetuity. As such, the Investment Committee works closely with its investment consultant, NEPC, to review risks and opportunities as they arise. A subcommittee is also engaged as needed to keep the momentum going between meetings of the full Investment Committee. The Community Foundation recognizes and appreciates the dedication and support of all its volunteer Investment Committee members and its consultant.
